

Student Guide

How to sign in, see your mentoring hours, and book sessions on freshlog.

1 Signing in

1. Open the freshlog link your program shared with you.
2. Click "Continue with Google" and sign in with the email your program registered.
3. The first time only: enter your full name and your Telegram username, then continue.

TIP If you signed up yourself (your email wasn't pre-registered), an admin has to approve you first. You'll see a "registration received" message until then.

2 Your hours (home page)

The top strip summarises your hours:

- Allotted — total hours granted to you.
- Completed — hours you've actually used in sessions.
- Missed — sessions you didn't show up to (still counted).
- Remaining — hours you can still use.
- Expired — hours that passed their deadline unused (only shown if you have any).

Below that, "Hours with each mentor" shows your balance with every mentor, a progress bar, and the date you need to use them by.

3 Deadlines matter

Every block of hours has a use-by deadline. Book and use them before that date.

TIP Once a deadline passes, any unused hours in that block expire and can no longer be used. freshlog notifies you before the deadline and when it passes.

4 Booking a session

1. Go to "Book a session".
 2. Each mentor card shows how many hours you have left with them and a booking button (their own calendar).
 3. Book a time. After the session, your mentor logs it and it appears in your session history.

5 Missed sessions (no-shows)

If you miss a session you booked, your mentor can mark you as absent. Those hours are still deducted and shown as “missed” — so try not to miss, and let your mentor know in advance if plans change.

6 Notifications

The bell icon (top-right) collects everything important: hours granted, sessions logged, deadline reminders, and approval updates. A red dot means you have unread items.
